

Authors are asked to adjust their papers to the following basic format:

I. Abstract

The abstract of the paper should be minimum 50 words, but not more than 250 words long. The summary should explain the purpose of the research, the methods and principal results, the major points of discussion and conclusions.

II. Keywords

III. Introduction

The introduction should start broad and narrow down to a specific thesis or research question. The introduction should reveal some broad knowledge of the overall topic and quickly focus on the major point of the paper.

IV. Background, History, Review-of-Literature, Methodology of the research

V. Results

This section catalogues the results of the research. The results should be presented in a clear and unbiased way.

VI. Discussion

This section is where the writer finally makes the major point or claim the previous sections have led the reader to expect.

VII. Conclusion

The conclusion should reinforce the major claims or interpretation in a way that is not mere summary. The writer should try to indicate the significance of the major claim/interpretation beyond the scope of the paper but within the parameters of the field. The writer might also suggest further research the study indicates is necessary.
